Re: Technology Readiness Statement - OWN THE STORY® Digital Platform

It has been our pleasure to work with People 4 People Productions (“P4PP”) as they prepare for the next phase of their OWN THE STORY® educational initiative - a digital learning and global media platform designed to give young people the opportunity to create, publish, and distribute meaningful educational and community-centered media to audiences on a global scale.

Over the course of our engagement, TulipTech has worked closely with P4PP to evaluate the full technical requirements of this vision. Together, we have developed a comprehensive project scope, implementation plan, development timeline, and investment structure covering the platform’s core components - from its public-facing platform and learning management system through to its streaming infrastructure and companion mobile application.

Based on our professional technical assessment, the proposed platform is feasible and can be successfully delivered using modern cloud architecture, scalable video streaming infrastructure, and integrated learning management systems. The project has progressed well beyond the conceptual stage and is supported by a clearly defined technical roadmap.

TulipTech is prepared to commence development in accordance with the agreed implementation schedule once the appropriate agreements have been executed and the initial project milestone conditions such as formal signing and initial payment are confirmed.

What has impressed our team most is that this initiative extends well beyond a technology build. It represents an innovative educational model with a clear mission: to give young people the opportunity to create, publish, and distribute meaningful educational and community-centered content to audiences on a global scale, while building workforce-ready digital media skills.

We recognize People 4 People Productions as the educational and creative lead of this initiative and commend the thoughtful planning that has shaped both its educational framework and its long-term vision. Should educational institutions, philanthropic partners, or other stakeholders require further information regarding the technical implementation of the platform, TulipTech would welcome the opportunity to participate in a future technical discussion.

We look forward to our continued partnership with People 4 People Productions as this initiative moves toward implementation.

Sincerely,

Masum Shamjad
